

Northern Territory (NT) comprises a land area of 1,346,200 square kilometres. It is the third largest land mass area after Western Australia and Queensland, however the NT has the smallest population per km<sup>2</sup> of all States and Territories.

Darwin is the capital city with an estimated population of 69,301. The northern region of the NT is referred to as the Top End and has two official seasons. The 'Wet' occurs between October and April and has high humidity and heavy monsoonal rainfall, while the 'Dry' season runs from May to September.

In contrast the central and southern regions of the NT display vastly different landscape, flora and fauna and climatic conditions.

Generally the southern region is relatively dry for most of the year and experiences cooler winters and hot dry summers. Alice Springs is the largest regional population centre outside Darwin.
